Highly motivated software developer / Engineer that one day wants to work in the game industry and travel the world. In the meantime, I intend to work hard and learn everything I can to grow as a software developer and contribute to the organization's development's needs. Because of my previous job experience, I have become very adaptable to an ever changing environment, paying attention to details, and keeping good communication with others to get work done quickly and effectively.

Roberto is a very self-motivated developer that is not afraid to tackle problems on his own. He has a strong sense of ownership in all his projects and has the grind that takes to become a great engineer. He is not afraid of getting his hands "dirty" and his knowledge does not match what is on paper for sure!
